Target general merchandise truckload #1

A broad, toy-led Target general-merchandise load: about half the retail value is toys and games, sold in small quantities across a very wide assortment.

How to read this catalog

Retail (manifest) is the retailer's price on the supplier manifest. Online now is the range of current online offers for the same UPC, with the number of stores, checked on the date shown in the data. Photos are the manufacturer's or retailer's official product images, matched by UPC.

Price on request

◆ AI deal analysis · 2026-10-11

Strengths

- Q4-friendly mix: toys are about half the value, and licensed properties (Star Wars, Disney, Pokémon, PAW Patrol, Bluey, Barbie) are about 21%.
- Retail listings for the 40 sampled SKUs carry 8,700 customer reviews averaging 4.15 stars, so the items have proven retail demand.
- The manifest reconciles: lines × quantity × unit retail add up exactly to the stated $87,383.50.
- No single item dominates. Losing one bad SKU barely moves the total.

Know before you buy

- These are customer returns and overstock, not graded. Expect some opened, incomplete or defective units, especially electronics and appliances.
- About 10% of the value (73 lines, about 100 units) is electrical: mini fridges, ice makers, air fryers, microwaves, coffee makers, vacuums. These are U.S. 110–120 V models and only suit 120 V markets.
- Single-unit lines make sorting and pricing labour-heavy. Budget time to sort by department on arrival.
- Retail values are Target's listed prices, not what the goods will resell for. Plan your resale on a fraction of retail; the resale calculator on the lot page helps.

AI analysis can contain errors. Review the manifest and confirm import rules with your customs broker.
